This condition, he says, has raised difficulties and obstructions in pacification.

The effort to institute municipal government under American auspices he admits is a failure.

The report says the success of the guerrilla system depends upon complete unity of action among the native population. That there is such unity is frankly scknowledged, but how it is brought about Gen. MacArthur says has unable to ascertain. He did not know the defendant, but identified him by a photograph. He said he was asked by a man whom he only knew as "Fred" to take a letter up to Johnson at the New Amsterdam Hotel. He had met "Fred" in a saloon.

The letter was addressed Frederick M. Johnson. The hotel clerk zent a boy inpatairs with the witness. The witness went on: "I think the room Johnson occupied was 16. The loor was open, and he said there was no enswer to the letter."

Q. What did you see in the room?
A. I saw that woman there (pointing to the next witness).

The woman in being called gave the name Rosella Silver, her occupation as dressmaker and her address 79 West Minety-first street. She said she knew Johnson and identified him by a photograph. He said had known him eight months.

Q. On the 22d day of June last did.

Q. On the 22d day of June last did you occupy a room with him at the New Arnaterdam Hotel? A. Yes, sfr.
Q. Where did you meet him that evening? A. Corner of Twenty-third street and Broadway, by appointment.

Didn't Know He Was Married.

She did not know he was a married man, she said. She had met him on other o-crasions. As in the other cases one question was not answered by the witness on the ground that she did not want to degrade herself.

"Do you remember a man bringing a letter there?" she was asked, She replied, "I do not know. Somebody came to the door, and Mr. Johnson opened the shortage in the past, and this amounted to the door, and Mr. Johnson opened the shortage in the past, and this amounted door, out I did not see his face." She said she did not know Johnson's bus.ness, but understood that he was a contractor.

was dressed coming out of the room, putting on a collar at one time.

The man who testified to inisconduct in this case gave the name Thomas M. Jones, of 342 Manhattan avenue.

Q. What is your business? A. I deal in freworks. The same Dusiness was given by the male witness in another case of Zeimer's.

Jones said he had known Mrs. Cortelyou for two years. He had visited her in March. April and May, at 121 West Sixty-fifth street. "I knew she was married and was not living with her nushand."

The next question which was whether he had been guilty of misconduct with the defendant, he declined to answer on the ground that it would degrade him.

Another case showing similarity in the evidence was that of Frederica B. Johnson against Frederick M. Jonnson, in which she obtained a decree after a reference on Aug. 7. Zeimer appeared for the plaintiff and "W. W. Royal" fled an answer for the defendant.

Joseph Barrett was the name the male witness gave in his case, his address was stated to be 212 feast One Hundred and Seventh street, and his business dealing in cigars.

Capt. Staples said the northwester struck the vessel at 9.30 o'clock yesterday morning. Her head could not be kept up against it, and she fell off in the trough of the sea. Twice stayasalls were hoisted, and, as soon as set, blown away.

The violent pitching of the vessel brought the propeller out of the water, so that the engine had to be reduced to a very low speed, to prevent the "racing" of the propeller smashing the machinery.
